ADMINISTRATION

Diverse people, people of contrasts
Our teachers guide each of us,
Shaping individuals.

Acting with efficiency
Achieved through experience,
The Administration directs
The energies of our many-sided school,
Bringing unity.

Here we profile in pictures
The intricate pattern
Of Administration.

LS Michael

ETHS is truly a school of contrasts. It is one big school, over 3400 this year, and four "small" schools, each with some 850 students. Only a large school could provide our extensive programs in curriculum and activities, our fine facilities, our educational experimentation. At the same time, ETHS has the special advantages of smallness. Each student receives the close, individual attention he requires for the fullest self-development. Within the larger picture of our school are special contrasts: athletic champions, poetry contest winners, excellent teachers in both humanities and technical arts, a student body of different backgrounds and talents. In the theme of contrast, the 1961 Key staff has found a true touchstone of our school's greatness.

Faculty Members Show Diverse Interests

Mr. Douglas Halsted, the mad scientist of ETHS, makes a genie after years of painstaking research.

Miss Elizabeth Aaronsohn charms Barbara Radner with folk songs of the world.

Teachers and students decorate the main hall Christmas tree under the experienced eye of Mr. Thomas Wilson.

Teachers converse informally before the November faculty meeting.

A coffee break provides relaxation during Parents' Night.

Mr. Thomas Wilson entertains parents during a three-minute conference.

Counselors Play Vital Role in Students' Success

Mr. Lester Dean, Miss Mildred Fox, Mr. Floyd Cummings, Mrs. Jean Cantelupe.

No student is lost---not while the Guidance Service helps each student find his way. Through individual counseling, student panels, films and special speakers, the Guidance Department provides the advice each student needs to reach his goals.

Barry Marshal, Mrs. Mary Roberts, Mr. Nelson Culver, Miss Leslie Perel.

Dr. William Fels of Bennington College.

Parents Support Student Activities

Mr. Dan V. Holman, Mr. Louis Schnitz, Mr. Sherman Finger, Mr. Fred Majors, Mr. Elmer G. Holm, Mr. Leo J. Samuelson.

Mr. Rasmussen cheerfully disciplines two tardy parents on Parents' Night.

BOARD OF EDUCATION: Mr. John Scott, Mr. John Emery, Dr. L. S. Michael, Mr. David Sampsell, President, Mrs. Eleanor Potter, Mr. Elmer Zitzewitz, Mrs. Fred Norman, Dr. Fredric Lake.

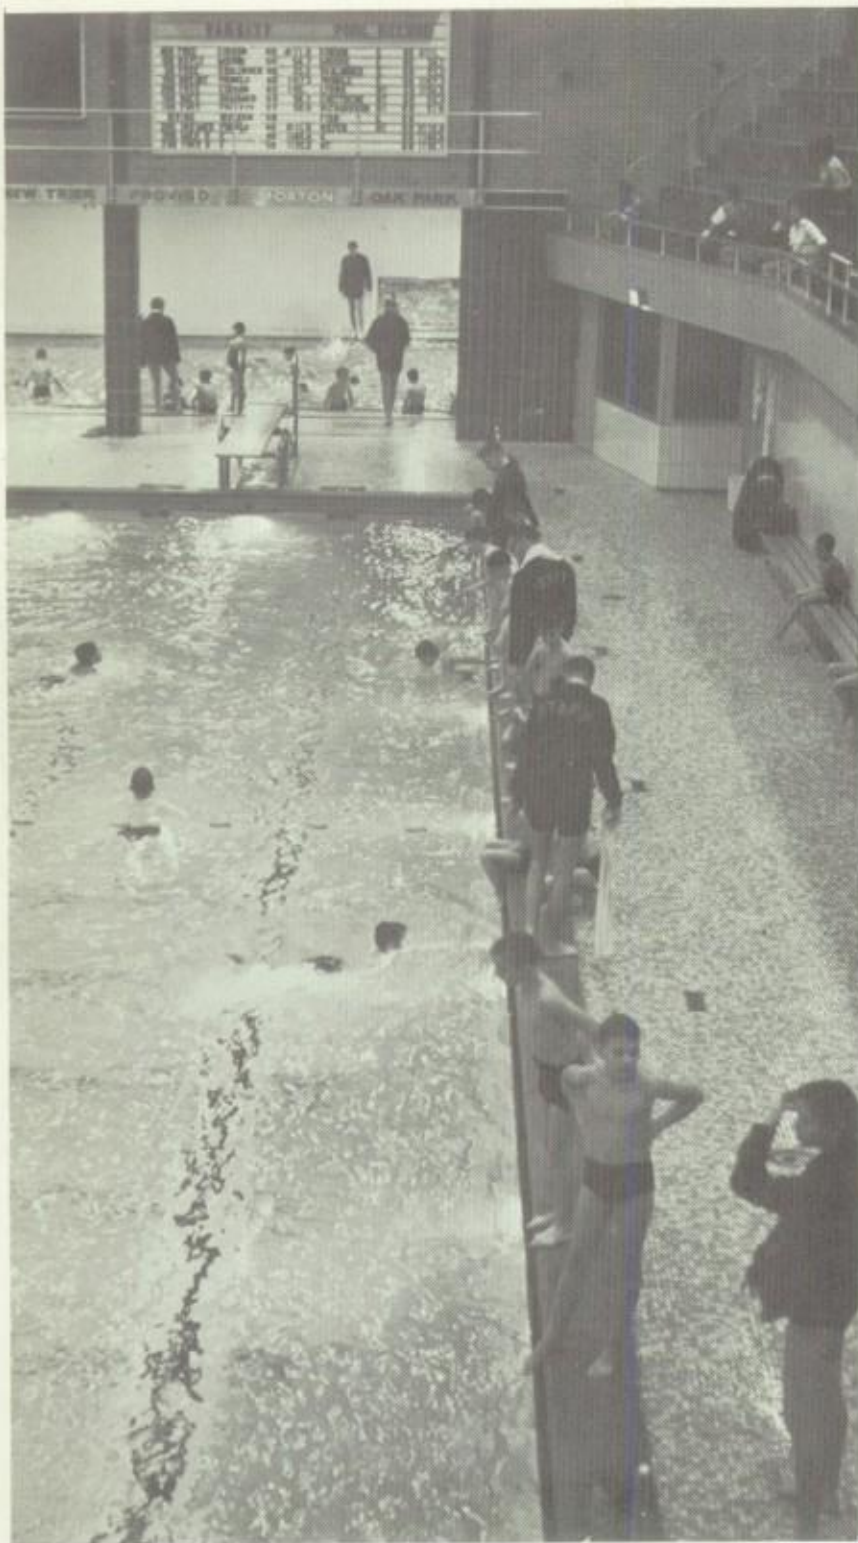

Enjoyable faculty teas and the Senior Prom demonstrated the success of the Parent-Teacher Association this year. Other PTA projects included the annual benefit show and contributions to the scholarship funds.

The Dad's Club sponsored a variety show and the installation of an air purifier in the boy's locker room. The group varied fall activity by showing weekly films highlighting the action of the Varsity football games.

The thirty-three parents and three teacher members of the Lay Advisory Council carefully studied proposed changes in school curriculum and administration. The Council then advised the faculty and Board of Education concerning the specific problems considered.

Custodians maintain appearances.

Future ETHS swimming champions practice their skills under the guidance of the Aquatic Staff every Saturday morning.

Service Staffs Maintain ETHS

Despite a year of ceaseless innovation, the friendly custodial staff maintained the building and grounds with their usual efficiency. While the Job Placement Bureau solicited employment for industrious students, the many Health Service, Bookroom and Cafeteria personnel helped satisfy other student needs.

Maryann Klemens, Marjorie Hill (SEATED), Gregg Fawcett and Mrs. Penny Schmidt talk about job placement.

Miss Mary Vettes, Geron Vartan, Irene Schultz, Carol Axelrod, Mr. Ralph Potter, Nancy Dash, Gordon Wickersham and Mrs. June Taylor in the Main Office.

Offices Increase Program Efficiency

Administrative aides working in the Main Office continued their orderly system of arranging student records, report cards and program distribution. A special IBM section increased the efficiency of Evanston's operation by coordinating the workers' efforts. The Business Office staff, a similar force in school order, directed Evanston finances and plant maintenance.

Mr. Floyd Wilson, Miss Synove Pearson, Mrs. Margaret Paulson and Mr. John Scott converse in the Business Office.

Mr. Floyd Wilson, Miss Synove Pearson, Mrs. Margaret Paulson and Mr. John Scott converse in the Business Office.

CLASSES

Alert students gather in classes
Each with his books, each with his questions,
Seeking the answers, searching for identities.

Teachers lecture, discuss, explain:
Workshop, TV, project, CL,
Examine theories, past and present--
Einstein, Jefferson, Eliot, Twain.
Then classes change and students fill the halls.

Corridors come alive as individuals
With books, with questions, move along
Asking, answering, finding themselves.

Mr. Malcolm Mosing puts a hex on Cooky Fitzsimon's potatoes as the Reading for Pleasure class studies Patterns of Culture.

Search and Study under Summer Sun

Franz Hudson clears the horticulture garden.

During the summer months, ETHS became an intellectual center for Evanston youth. Many students worked in the modern chemistry and biology labs as athletes competed in a tennis round-robin tournament. While horticulture students toiled to harvest a fine crop, modern dancers experimented with rhythm, mood and interpretation.

Ken Lee and Jane Van de Voorde practice their dancing on the athletic field.

Drivers Perfect Road Skills

It looks like an amusement park, but students learn essential driving skills on Drivotainers.

Eager drivers perfected skills of the road under the supervision of Mr. Richard Boyer and his Drivers' Education faculty. Teachers advised the students on parking, steering and other driving techniques, and course graduates easily passed license tests.

Two work at testing-board.

Two drivers slalom in and out of cones, while a third practices parking. In each car a faculty member supervises.

Jonathan Lewis, Peter Grass and Anthony Sanda explore the world of Einstein.

Thirteen proved to be a lucky number for the ETHS Science Department. This many students attained honorable mention status in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search, setting a record unsurpassed by any other school. One of Evanston's candidates, Bob Axelrod, was named the nation's sixth best science student at the final competition in Washington D.C.

In other areas, the department continued effective programs, adding new equipment and modifying its policy to allow all freshmen to elect biology. The Science Department was saddened by the death of Mr. John Cochrane, who had taught biology and photography for many years.

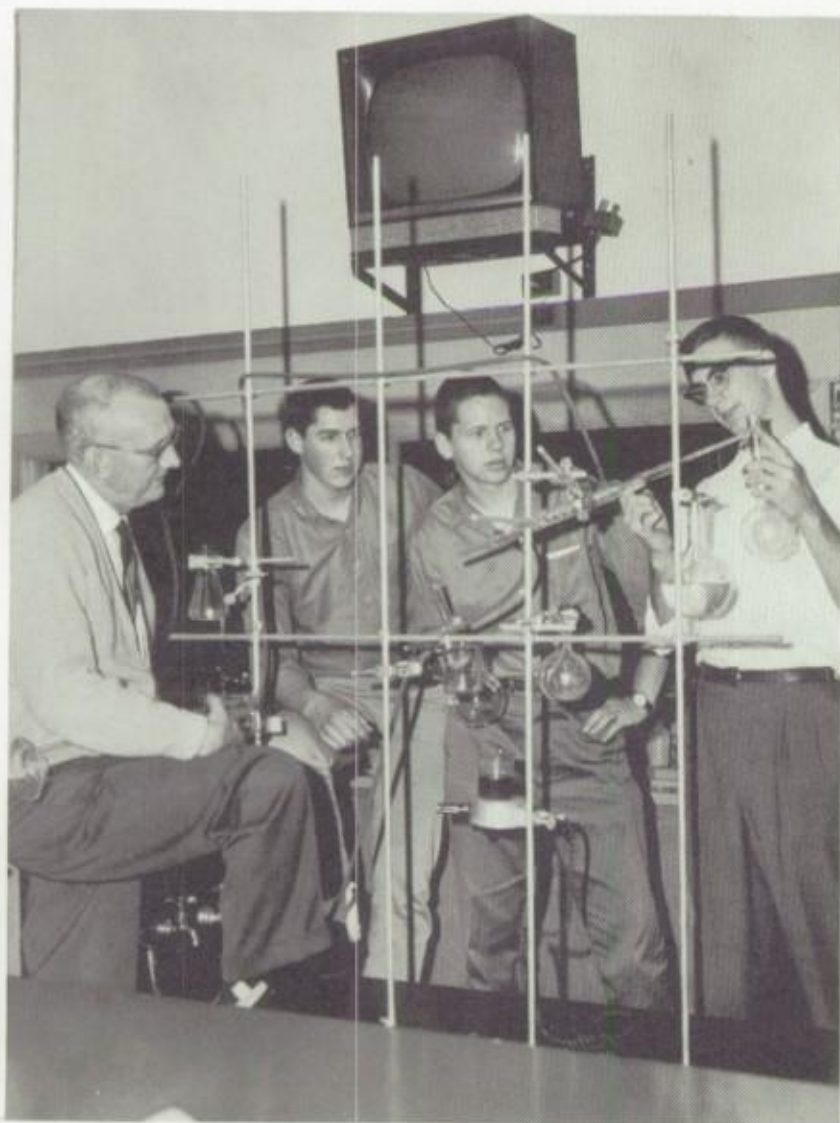

Saturday worker Mr. Robert Anspaugh arranges some apparatus with pleasure and care in his new cabinets in the Physics Lab.

Elements of Science

Judy Mathie, Barb Schwarm, Frank Roe, Ken Levin and Nancy Peters discuss a project in Biology CL.

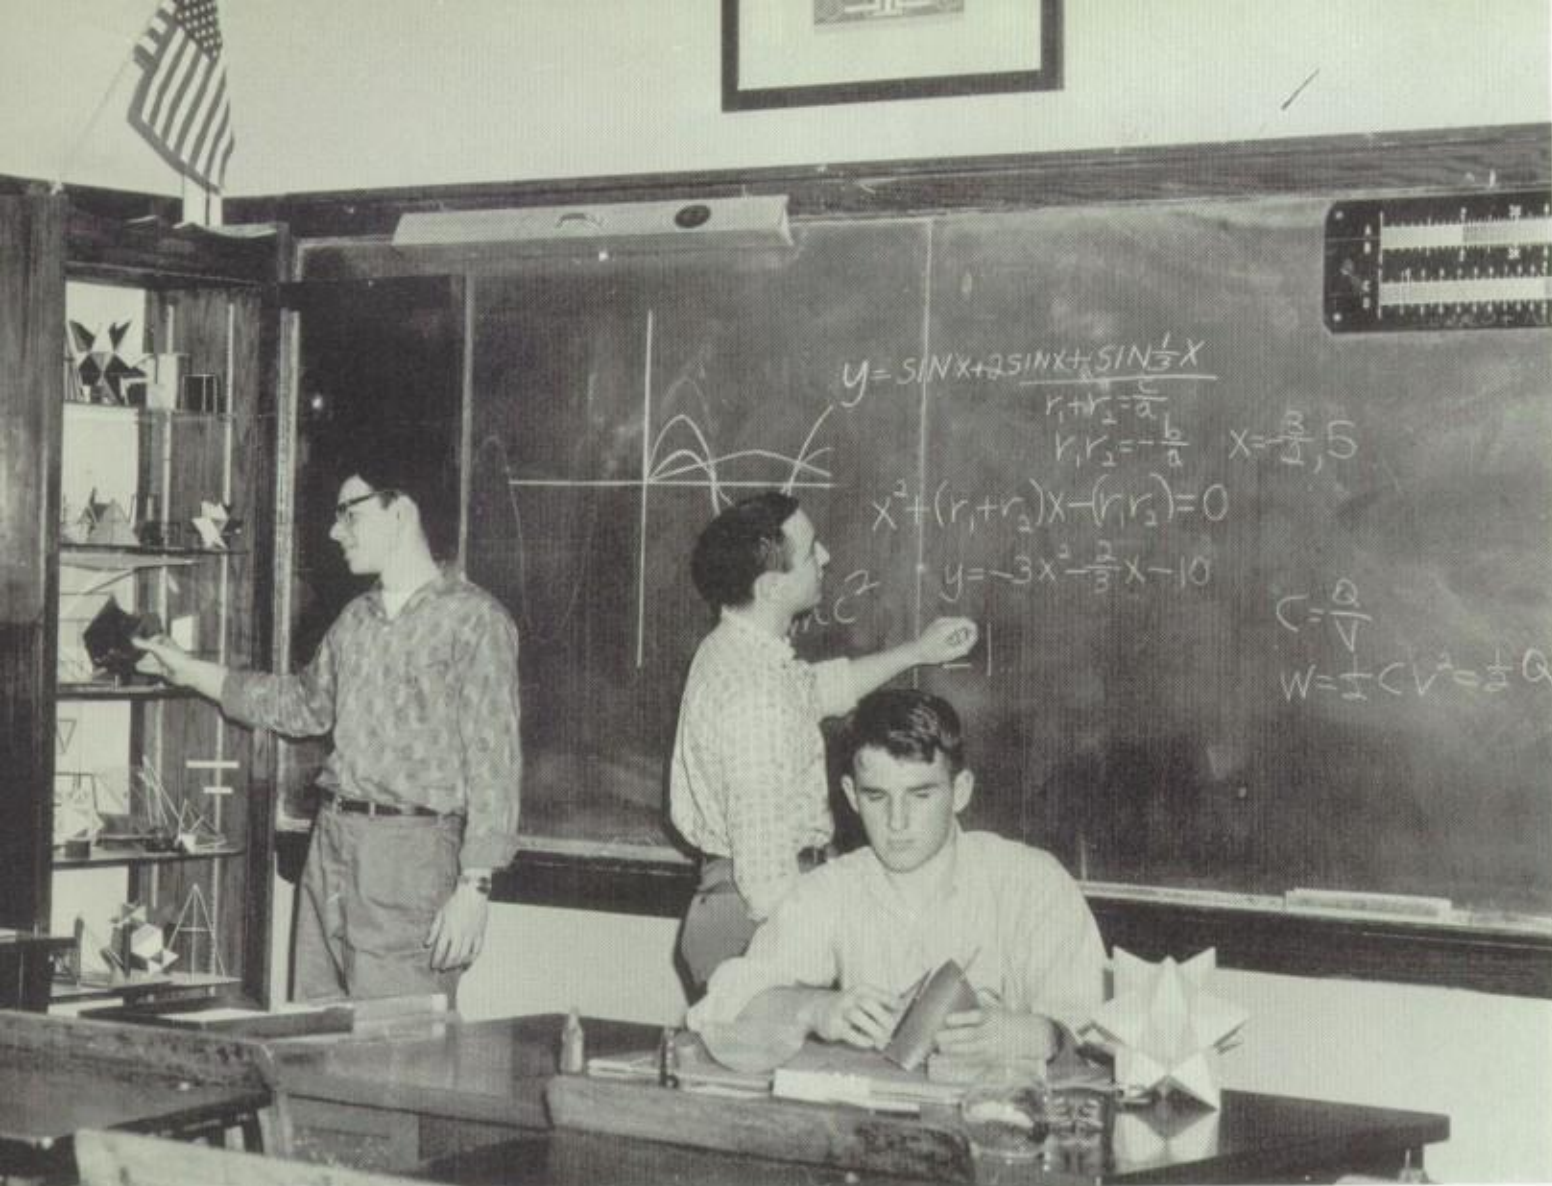

Mr. Salisbury, Doug Peterson and Stan Hedeem watch Frank Roe demonstrate a principle of distillation.

Chemistry students determine the acidity of a solution.

L. Mansfield, P. Grass and H. Alt work in various fields of mathematics.

Mathematicians Add New Dimensions

These are exciting days in mathematics! The department is looking forward to September when a new course, concentrating upon modern mathematics, will become part of its program. Some of the math to be given in this class has been developed only in recent years--that which is needed to advance business and industrial technology and also to expand the frontiers of science. In addition to the new course, the Mathematics Department also developed more effective methods of presenting conventional material on the vital subject.

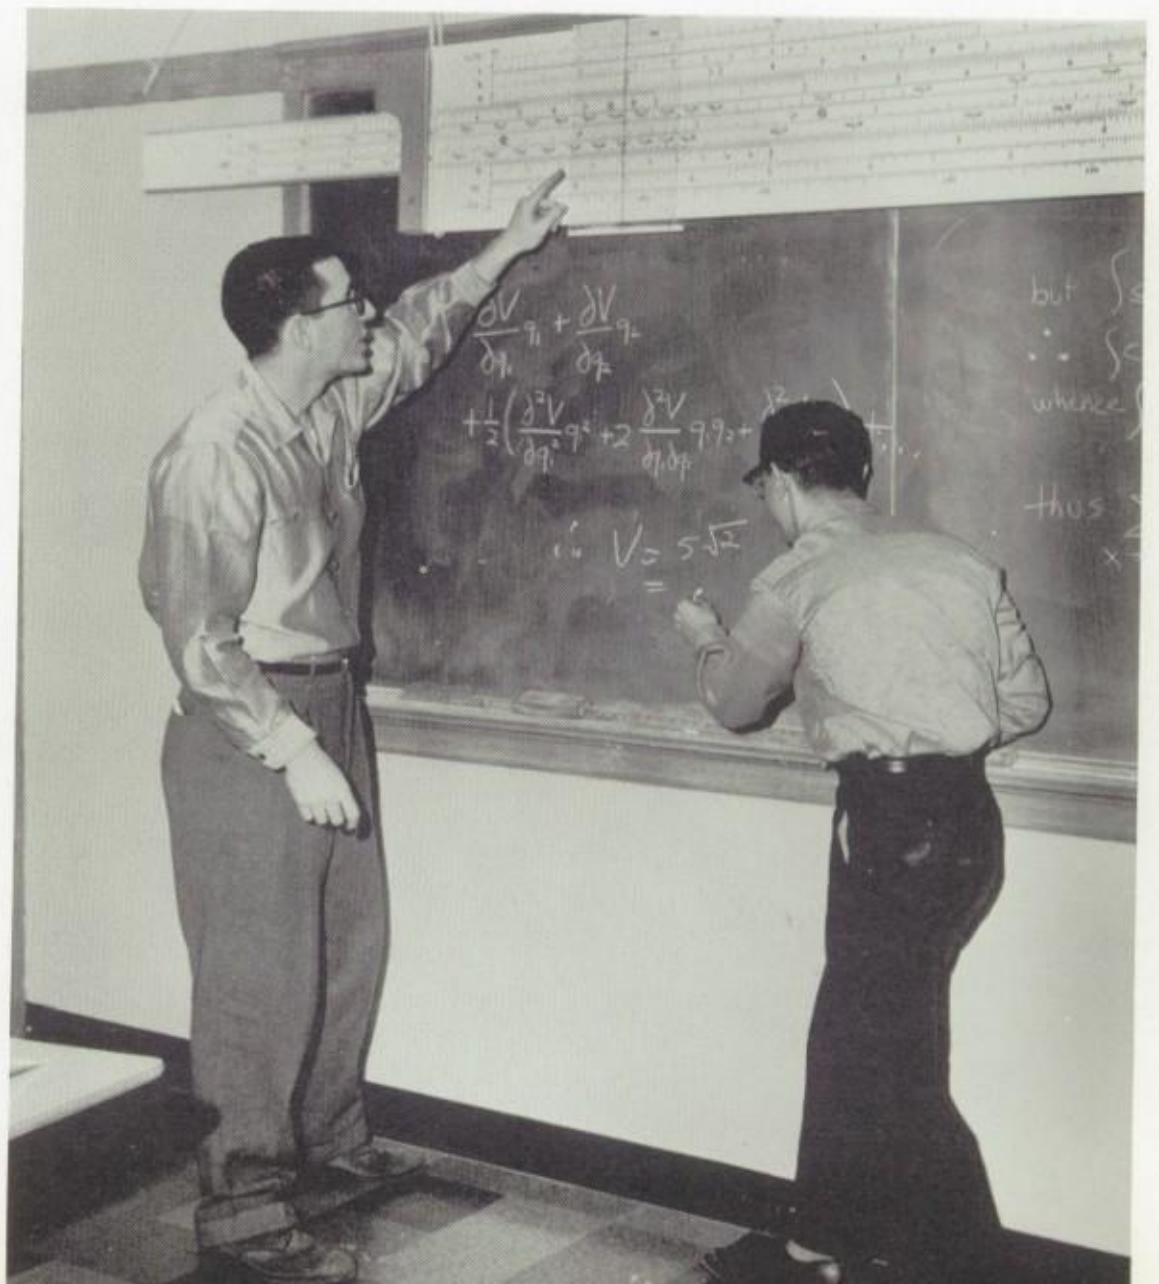

Mr. Hugh Hart lectures to General Mathematics Project class.

Jed Tatge and Sharon Benson inspect a chart in their 3 Algebra class.

Bill Schnaer and Bob Axelrod puzzle out a tough one.

Tom Brown, Alison Hayford, David Hadary and two interested onlookers watch Louise Dietrich as she represents Islam culture to I History of Civilizations project.

Nancy Morgan listens to Mr. Alan Larson explain a difficult point from Mr. Justin Kestenbaum's lecture. Mr. Kestenbaum (above) explored American domestic policy with the U. S. History project.

Social Scholars Review Our World

In the fall, Evanston's Social Studies Department presented a zero-hour class which surveyed Twentieth Century Russia each morning before school. Modifying teaching techniques and increasing material covered in class units, the project and World Civilization courses continued their study of ancient and contemporary worlds.

Outlining the system of banking to the American Problems project is guest speaker Mr. David M. Kennedy, Chairman of the Board of Directors, Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

Mr. Bernard Mattson supervises his first period class in college level European history.

Members of a Combined Studies class participate in one of the varied activities of their course.

*Best of luck

Department Growth

To encourage students to develop fully their abilities, the Combined Studies Department introduced a student workroom this year. Specially chosen upperclassmen staffed the unique room, and assisted members of the course in writing, doing research and presenting reports. The CS classes continued to give students a comprehensive view of English and social science.

Dan Bogaty delivers a report to student teacher Mr. Lawrence White, Dennis Dvorin, Tom Eickenberg, and Dennis Paulson.

Howard Blumenthal and Susan Spiegel deliver a program, one of the many activities of Combined Studies, to Karen Rest, Kathy Johnson, Sally Plass, and Loren Smith, as a gun points ominously through the curtain.

English Projects

After-school listeners sit fascinated as Mark Twain tells some stretchers.

Mr. Ned Hoopes lectures to 3 English Project classes while CBS-TV cameras grind.

Exciting Innovations

The enlarged English staff improved the department's project sections by integrating fresh methods of more effective teaching-- audio-visual aids and TV-teaching. In the program, teams of teachers presented composition and literature to junior and senior groups surveying the humanities.

Thirty lay readers, employed to lighten the work load of department teachers, read papers submitted by English students during the year. Moving from such books as Kon-Tiki to Hamlet, the flexible curriculum of the English Department challenged the abilities of individual students at all class levels.

Miss Karen Kuehner dramatizes a lecture to freshman English classes.

Mr. Ned Hoopes and his student teacher, Miss Barbara Boman, discuss student writing with their lay reader, Mrs. Robert Diller.

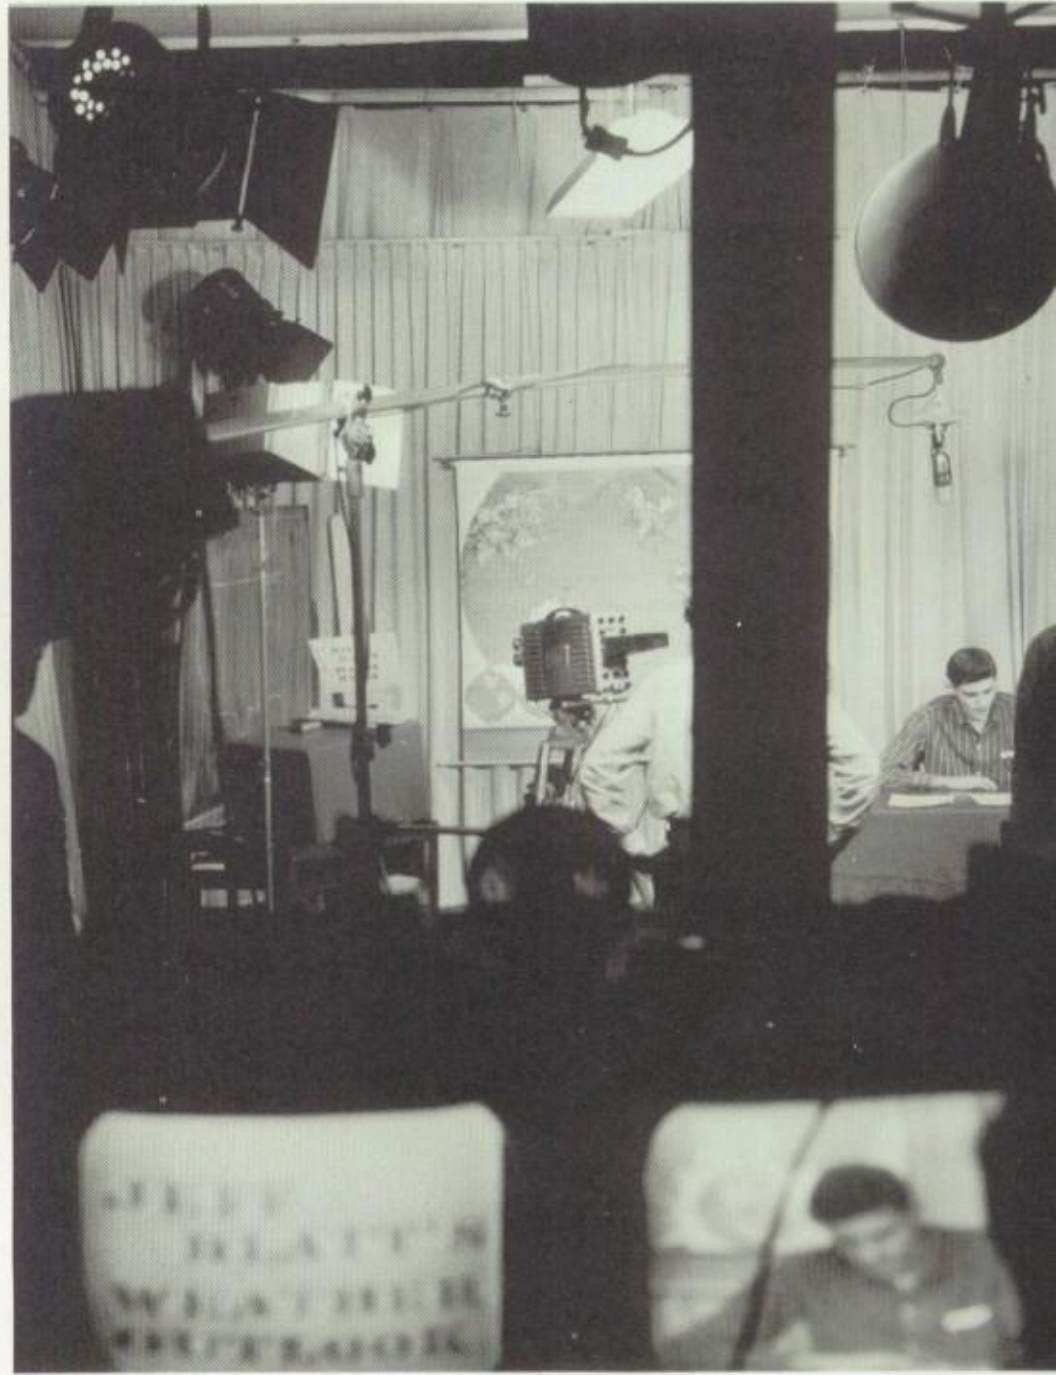

Mr. Charles Rathbone enlivens his English class with a fresh approach to teaching.

Program Sets Contemporary Air

While scientists at Cape Canaveral successfully received messages from the huge Echo I satellite, the EHS TV-Speech Department tuned in the highly-publicized educational broadcasts beamed from an airplane in flight over northern Indiana. Originating at Purdue University, the closed-circuit programs were presented by noted high school and college instructors.

The Speech Department also initiated the Speech Arts Council, a group of student representatives who aided the department in developing policies.

Modern high fidelity equipment and a complex intercom system amplified Evanston's language laboratory this year. Continuing a program of innovation, the Language Department diversified its courses by offering 2 German H, CL Latin, and a special English class for foreign students. Ambitious scholars of modern and classical languages developed a clearer understanding of foreign cultures and the art of communication.

Howard Alt, Kathleen Johnson, and Lucy Diller are wide awake for Miss Mary Jane McNally's before-school Greek class.

Mrs. Mary Colin teaches English to foreign students Anne-Lise Hansen, Sylvia Ramming, Anny Azirian, Marian Landwehr.

Artists Complete Creative Scene

Growing in experience and interest, young artists surveyed general areas of creative expression in the basic 1 Art course. With this background in skills and techniques, the craftsmen challenged specialized fields of painting, drawing, pottery, and design.

To stimulate their program this year, the Art Department offered Graphic Arts, a course which investigated block printing, etching, lithography, and silk screening.

Technical Arts

Offering a galaxy of courses as varied as the entire field of industrial arts, the Technical Arts Department program proved highly popular with EHS students. The courses were especially valuable to potential carpenters, auto mechanics, electrical workers, and other skilled tradesmen.

Apprentices Learn Trades

Barbara Bieda does positive retouching at Stuart-Rogers.

Eager students left their classes at midday to explore the world of skilled trades guided by Mr. Richards, new course co-ordinator of the Diversified Occupations program. This unique course prepared students who did not plan to attend college for employment after graduation.

Sandra Eggers directs a new account at Evanston Federal Savings.

The thirty-five seniors enrolled in the Distributive Education course investigated business careers through the co-operation of local offices. After lunch, the students who had attended usual morning courses reported to jobs in banks, hotels, insurance companies and other Evanston firms.

Office Skills Learned in School

Now in its second year, the child development course, a part of the Home Economics Department, was relocated to a nursery school set up in one of the duplex homes on the school grounds. To supplement their classroom studies, girls in the course planned and supervised varied programs for a group of pre-school children.

In addition to learning about the many facets of homemaking, students in regular Home Economics courses participated in the Spring Fashion Show, competed in the General Mills $5,000 Scholarship Contest and heard speakers from various homemaking professions.

PE Stresses Individual Improvement

Through a diversified program of athletic activity, Evanston's Physical Education Department developed individual potentials and team co-operation. Not only did gymnasts, archers, wrestlers and dancers increase their skills in their own fields, but the athletes also participated in the other sports of the curriculum, such as ping-pong, volleyball, bowling and golf.

Players Brighten Musical Scene

Directed by Mr. Robert Werner, the ETHS orchestra brightened the auditorium with music and harmony. In a full year of performances, the musicians played with ability in the many productions showcasing their talents.

In new uniform, the Cadet Band brought new talent to Evanston's musical scene, and, with the ETHS Marching Band, it complemented the action of athletic events. The groups displayed skill and precision before spectators throughout the sports seasons.

KING AND I Joyful, Charming, Etc., Etc., Etc.,

Delighted audiences greeted The King and I, Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical comedy which played in the auditorium for three nights in March. The cast, aided by Mr. Robert Proper and the fine sets of his stage crew, created a Siamese court faced with the difficulty of accepting Western culture. The arrival of a teacher from England, skillfully played by Linda Farquharson, underlines the challenge of adjustment. Representing Siam, Dick Brown and Sherm Finger masterfully portrayed a king meeting the puzzlements of Anna's world. Mr. Malcolm Mosing directed this outstanding musical, Mr. Robert Werner produced the music and Miss Sadie Rafferty co-ordinated the talents of the Music, Art and Drama Departments with those of a very large cast which included many young children from the area.

Choreographed by Mr. Gus Giordano, the dance sequence, "The Small House of Uncle Thomas," contributed greatly to the rhythm and color of the production. Staged by the co-operative efforts of staff and students, this brilliant musical brought professional quality to an ETHS production.

The Bangkok court grieves as their king dies and his traditional ways pass, overshadowed by the new ideas Anna has brought.

ETHS Varsity Named Best in State

Guided by head coach Murney Lazier, forty hard-working boys captured Evanston's second consecutive Suburban League football championship. Sam Ward, Robert Genenz, and Owen Thomas were named to the all-state teams. Sophomores followed the Varsity's lead and tied with New Trier for the Suburban League championship. The Junior Varsity team finished with a 2 win-3 loss record, and the Freshman "A" team's 5 win-2 loss record anticipated success for next season.

As usual, an attempt to block an Evanston place-kick fails. Chuck Didriksen converts while Doug Holcomb holds.

Courtmen Brin

Guided by Captain Bob Majors and talented Don Cleveland, the Varsity basketball team showed promise of a great season next year with all five starters returning. This year was highlighted by a thirty-point rout of Highland Park and a victory over Niles by sixteen points.

The Sophomores, starring high scoring Chuck Johnson, had an exciting season including many close games such as a thrilling one point victory against New Trier.

It's on the way! Sophomore ace Don Cleveland drops it in while John Scott looks on.

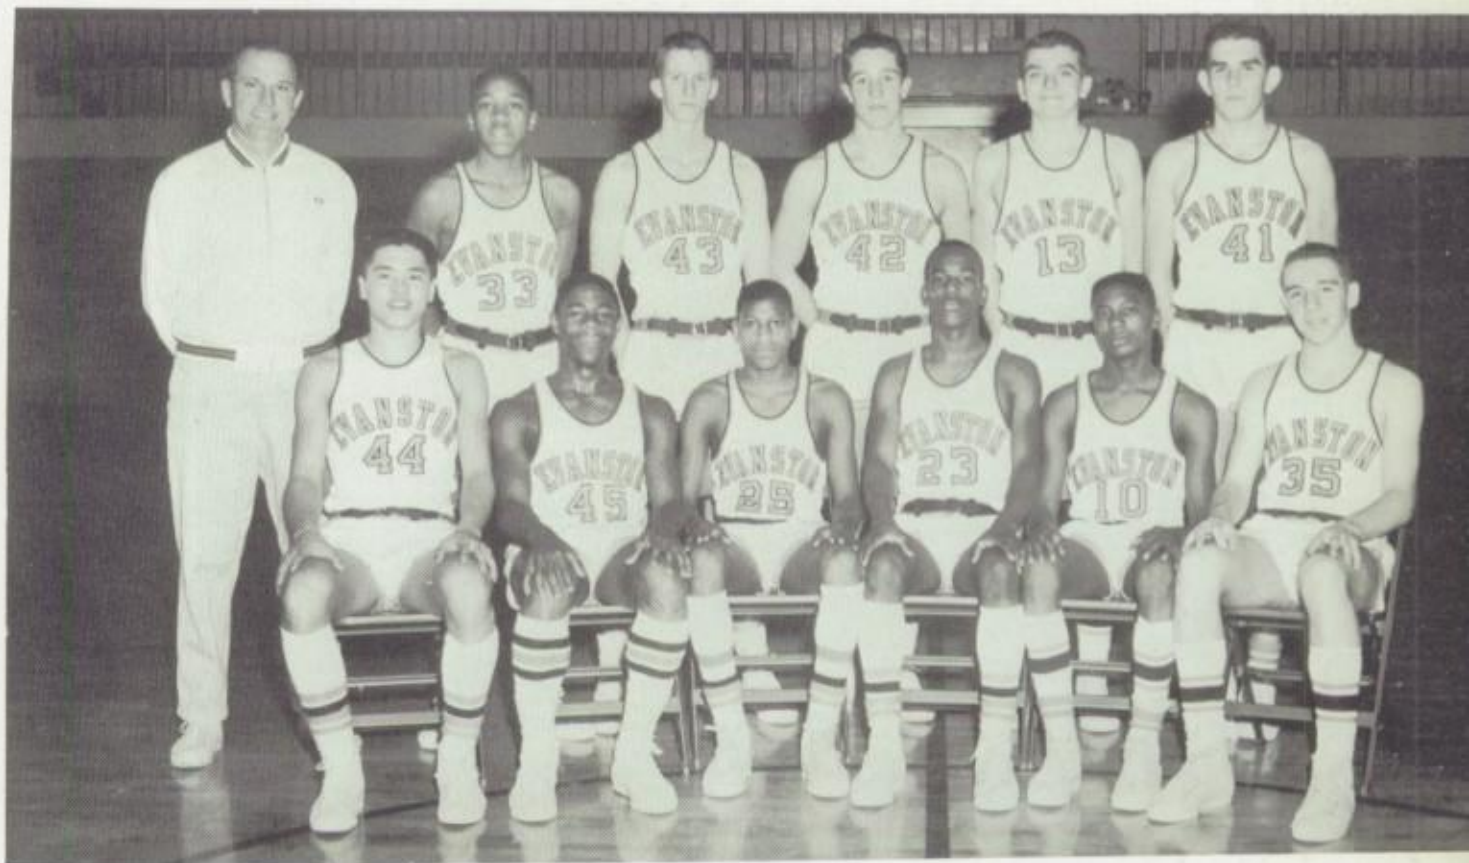

Don Cleveland and Doug Holcomb wait anxiously as Bob Scott attempts to tip the ball their way.

Trio Lead

Three grapplers, all back from last year's squad, highlighted an unusual season for the Orange and Blue. Captain Sam Ward, 1960 state finalist in the 138 lb. class, sped to a long succession of victories, while Bob Pickens, a 6'3" Junior, successfully handled all heavyweight opponents. With equal ease, Mike Bedinger scored many impressive wins over tough Suburban League foes.

Competent Swimmers Guard Pool Area

An industrious staff served ETHS in many ways throughout a year of pool activity. After a week of pool supervision, student members of Evanston's Aquatic staff spent many Saturdays teaching grade school children to swim, and continued this program during the summer. Skillful Aquettes graced our well-staffed pools, moving with poise through the intricate patterns of water ballet.

Teams Shoot Birdies, Bullseyes

With the help of two returning lettermen from last year's Co-Suburban League Champs, the ETHS Golf Team completed an outstanding season. Led by Junior Sherm Finger and Senior Phil Holm, Evanston defended its title at the Wilmette Golf Course. Our toughest competition came from Waukegan, Highland Park, and New Trier.

Despite a disappointing won-lost record, the ETHS Rifle Team worked tirelessly to gain ability and accuracy. Led by Dave Miller (not pictured below) and Brad Perkins, the riflemen competed in ten Saturday morning meets with various neighboring schools.

Teams Track Success with Skill

Bob Pickens shows the shot put form that set many records during the season.

The Indoor Track season closed with a flourish when the Frosh-Soph team won the third annual North Shore Relays. Earlier, the team not only won the Suburban League Championship, but also set four new track records and tied another. The Varsity met considerable success in the SL race, and both teams improved during the year's training and competition.

Trackmen transferred indoor skills to outdoor contests when the outdoor season began with a dual meet at Maine West on April 14. Outdoor track stresses individual performance, and Coach-es Peters and Schultz directed the sportsmen in the efficient application of prowess and technique. The power displayed in both Track seasons projected fresh championship hopes for 1962.

SENIORS

We came to Evanston seeking new direction
And met a four year challenge within the Changing patterns of our high school world.

Each fall our class adapted to a complex
World of ideas and books. But, Seniors
In the season of commencement, we become
Suddenly aware that our long quest ends
At the beginning of life's greater journey.

Now, as young Americans, we look beyond ETHS to
A world bright with the promise of the sixties,
And join a generation moving forward in CONTRAST.

Seniors Review The

Different people circulate in ETHS corridors.

With hopeful steps the Class of '61 entered Evanston's corridors in Autumn, 1957. That year students frequently paused in the between-period rush to admire the new auditorium, swimming pool and library. Mr. Bunn's enthusiastic leadership swelled Cheer Section to 700 members, and Evanston wildly cheered the Varsity football squad to the Suburban League title.

In year two, the IBM machine moved into the Main Office, while the twelve homerooms merged as four divisions. CC supported revival of an all school talent show, and YAMO became an October reality. The swiftness of sophomore year fore-shadowed continued changes.

Suddenly we were juniors. The all-school clubs--Quadrangle, Trireme, CC--modified their structures to fit a new hall system. Lunch periods shrank to 25 minutes.

Events approached summit after senior year arrived. Our Varsity Football Team ranked first in the state. Awards flowed in to winners from National Merit, General Motors and Westinghouse.

Finally came the Prom and Commencement----Seniors surveyed the results of the rushing events since Autumn, '57--Division and Hall Systems, re-organized clubs, athletic and academic achievements--four years of change and contrast.

Seniors would remember.

Summit Year

Juniors consider a voter's obligation, while seniors determine the capacity of a Volkswagon.

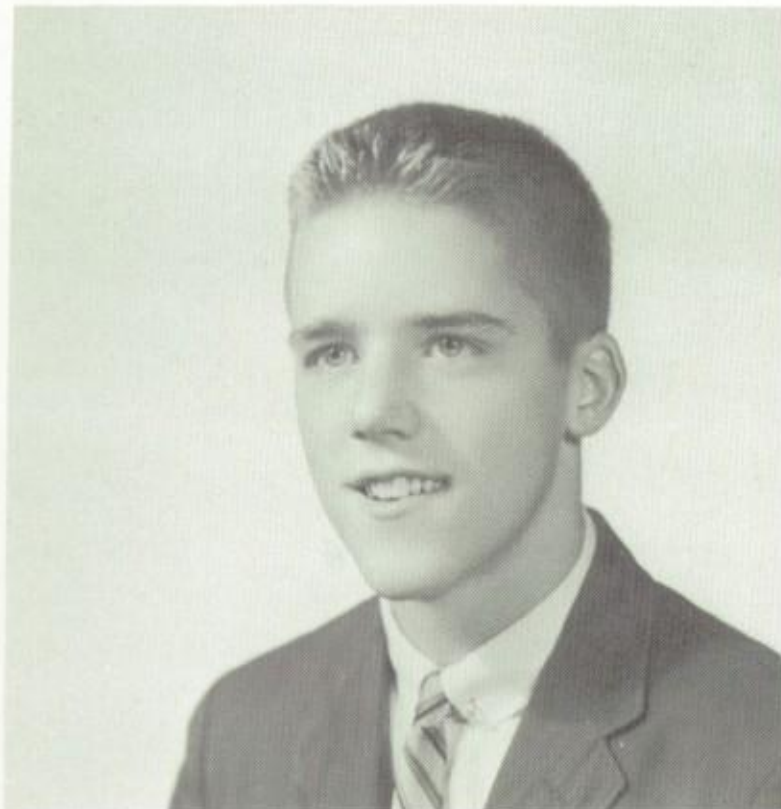

Dough Allderdice, Sue Swisher, Lou Richter, Sue Hockett, and Mr. Carlyle Ehri gather in auditorium lobby to review the March EYC Presentation.

ETHS STUDIES

ear in Contrast

We met in space with no apparent form;
Our unshaped selves found form in yearly patterns
Of creation. Contrast made us individuals, and
We structured visions in the freshness of a dream.

Responsibility promises maturity as classmen
Leave forums of learning to project separate Patterns of living. Moving with purpose, we Find that new direction opens upon old.

The story of our yearbook is not final.
Books outline action and thought of the past,
But cannot survey the future. THE KEY closes
Its profiles, the year complete, its promise clear
In a pattern bright with Contrast.

Barb. It was great having you
in our group!
Best of luck
Betsy
Cooke,

Dear Barb. It's been a great year in English. I hope that you always have the best of luck in everything you do.
Love
Laurie
Hornall

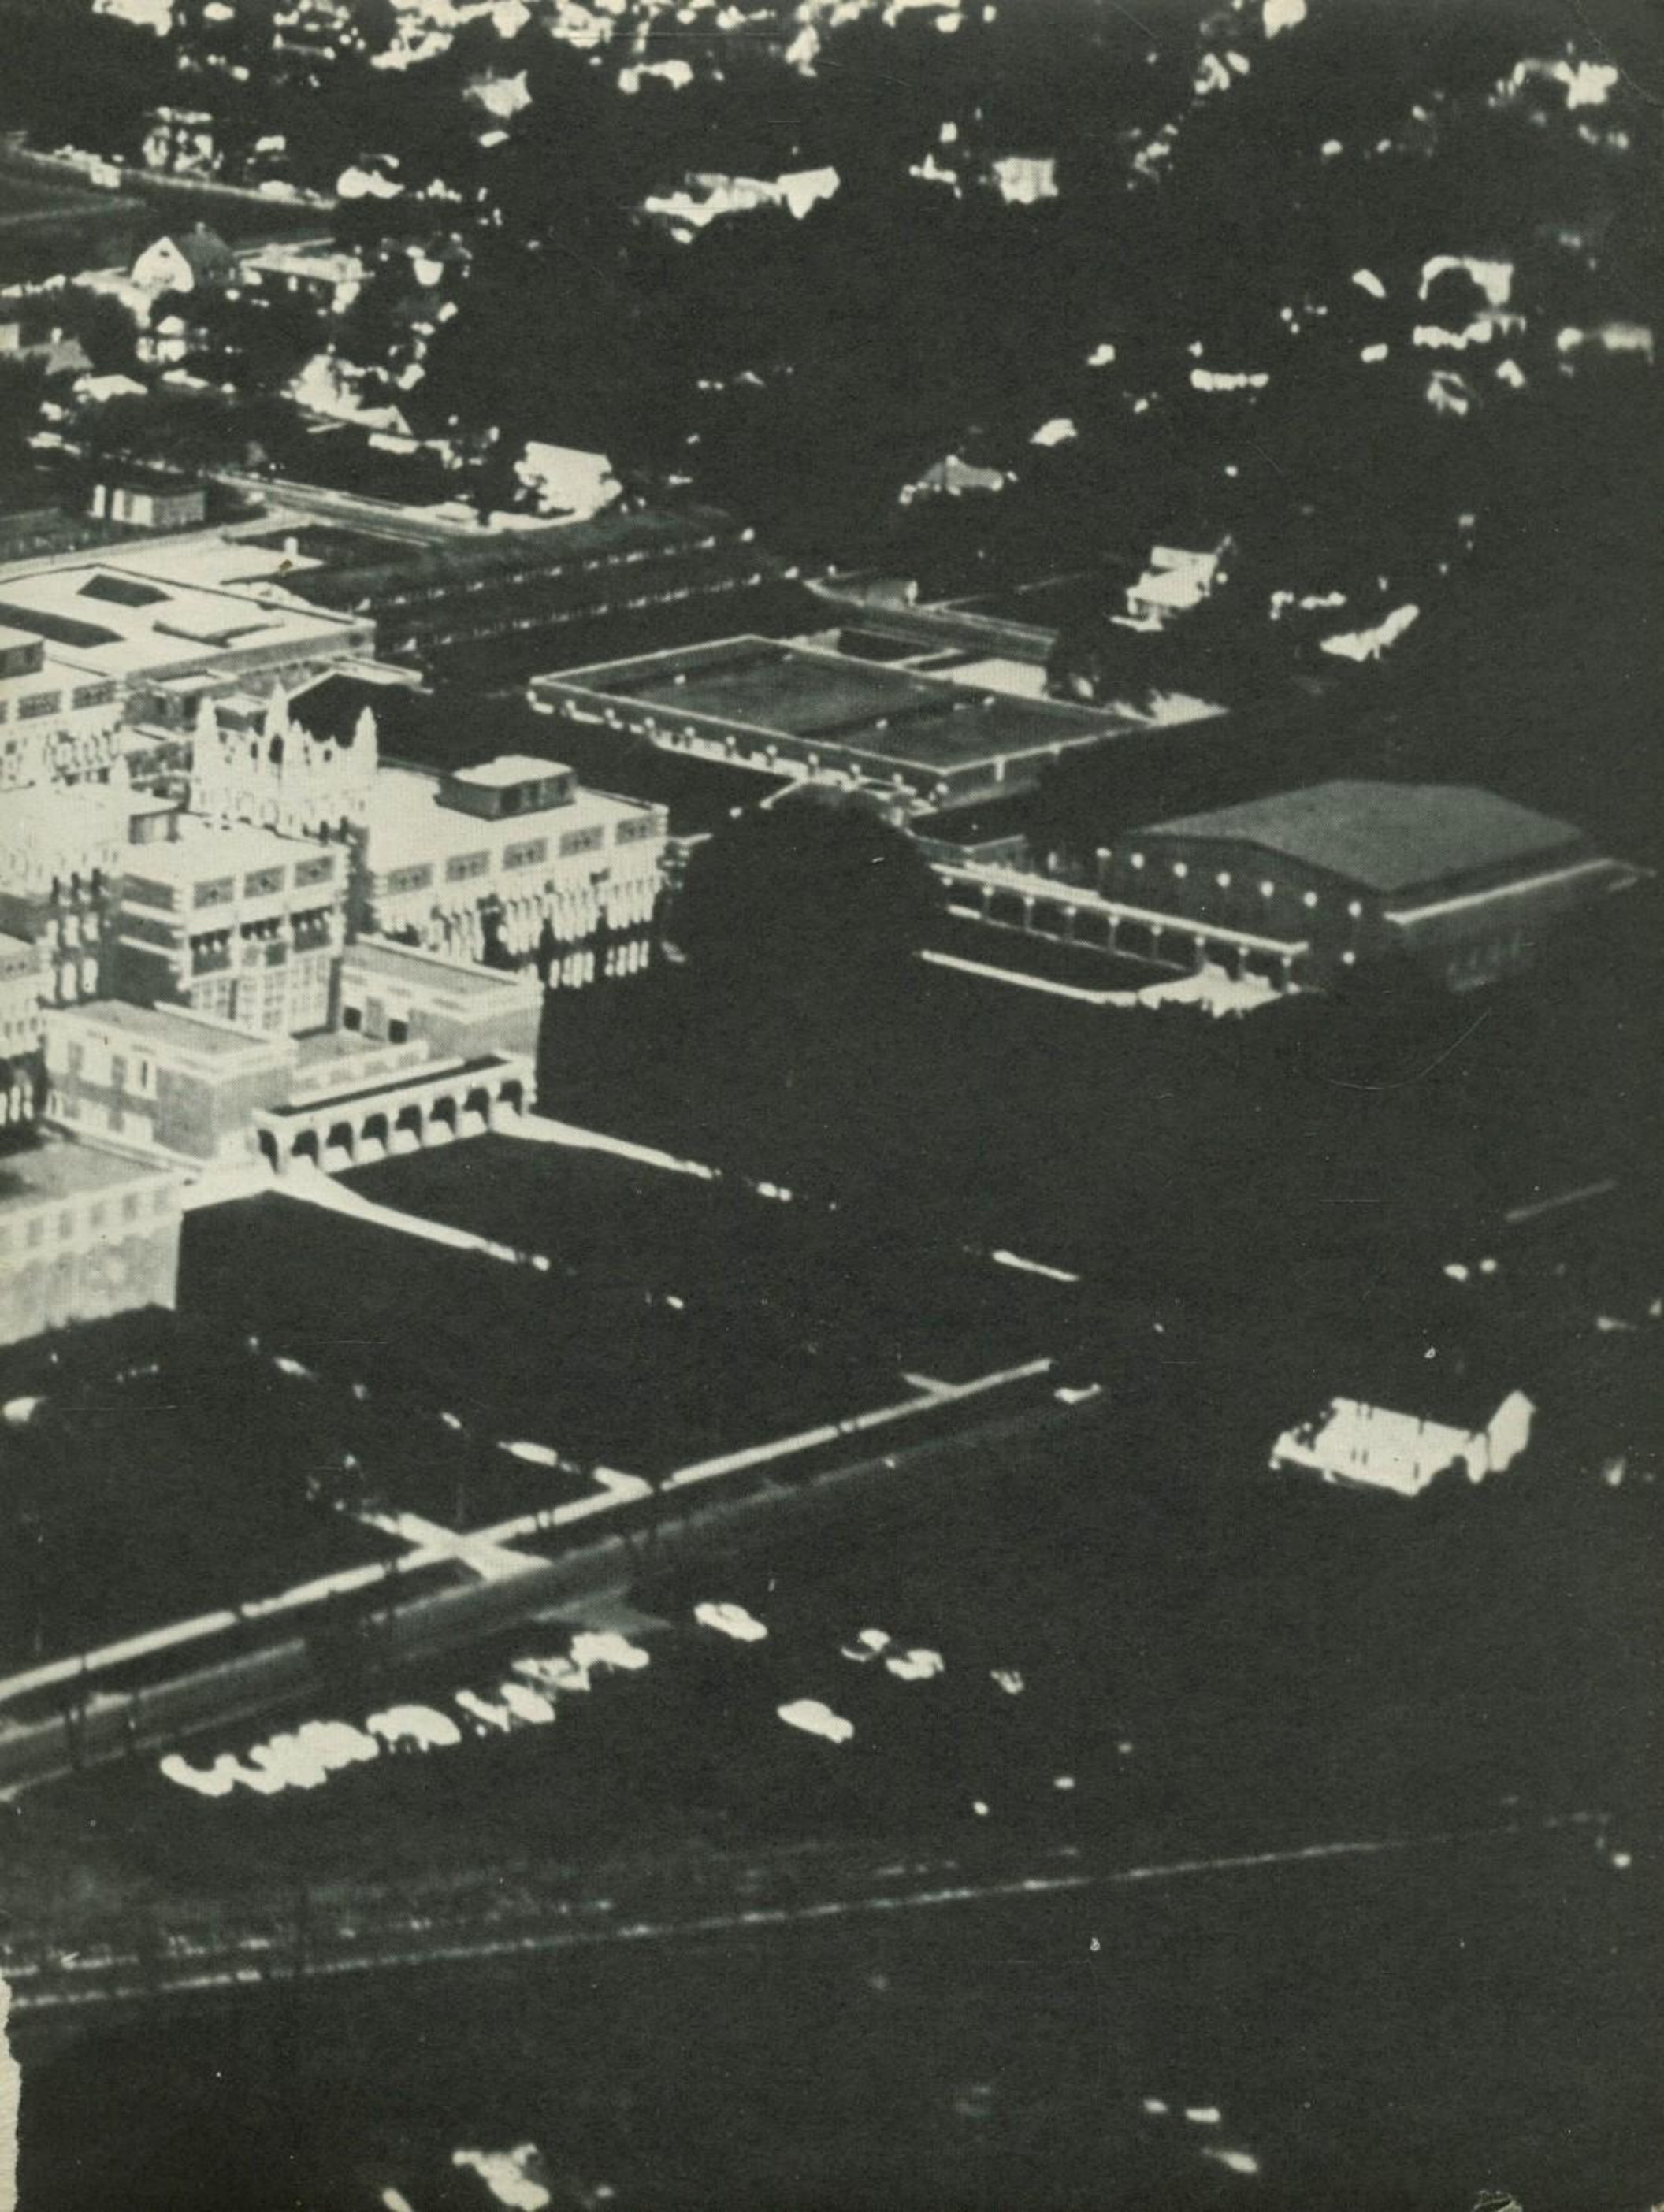

Dear Barb
It's been fun
working with you.
Have a nice summer.
See you next year,

Love,
Luan Nederlander
